

Experts in Partnership

At Partners International we're experts on the subject of developing successful partnerships with indigenous Christian ministries. We should be. We helped give birth to the idea, and it's why we exist: to identify unparalleled opportunities for investment in the Kingdom of God. We've been doing exactly that for more than 60 years.

If you're working on a story, and need information, advice, background or an informed opinion, Partners International welcomes media requests for interviews with our experts on these and other related subjects:

- Partnering with Christian ministries in the developing world
- Identifying potential partners in Kingdom building work
- Qualities of an effective partnership
- Developing/nurturing an effective partnership
- How to avoid common pitfalls of partnership
- Mentoring local partners towards self-sustainability
- How to have accountability in partnership without taking over
- Indigenous-led Christian ministry to un-reached people groups
- Challenges faced by indigenous local Christian groups who minister in countries closed to the Christian message
- Safe, effective evangelism in closed countries
- Meaningful missional giving
- Dos and don'ts of good stewardship when giving to missions
- Planning or executing a successful missions trip
- Needs-driven ministry in the developing world
- Our partners prove the effectiveness of holistic ministry (serving in word and deed) every day whether success is measured in baptisms, new churches or communities transformed
- Lessons from the growing Church in the developing world
- Keys to growing the Kingdom of God
- Stories of hope and courage from mission fields around the world

Your first point of contact is: Tom McLagan, Director of Development of Partners International Canada. Call him at 905.458.1202, ext. 228 or toll free at 1.800.883.7697. You can also email him at tomm@partnersinternational.ca. Tom will direct you to the right Partners expert.